Step Outside Your Specialty

The Interdisciplinary Autoimmune Summit, March 24-26, 2017, is the only event of its kind bringing together rheumatologists, dermatologists, gastroenterologists, immunologists, and other health care professionals to collaborate, discuss, and debate emerging immune-mediated inflammatory disease (IMID) therapies.

Join other specialists in and outside of your field looking to › Connect with other emerging leaders in IMID care and research.

› Gain collaborative care best practices.
› Look at the future of IMID therapy.
› Improve outcomes with innovative therapies.
› Discuss clinical research opportunities.

“Specialist doctors are too focused in their daily practice, while diseases have no boundaries. We need to share our concepts regarding the origins of these diseases, our strategies to keep them under control in order to limit progression and disability, our successes and our failures with emerging therapies and how to optimize those therapies, and finally our vision regarding how these diseases could be prevented and cured.”

There’s a growing realization that inflammatory diseases are not linked to any one organ system. So many specialties are involved, and each has insights. I first joined IAS because I am excited to learn from colleagues in other specialties. I keep coming back because of the new insights I gain each time I attend the IAS meeting.

We each care for patients, teach, and conduct research in a specific, discipline-focused universe. When we come together to listen to, converse with, and understand the perspectives of experts from other medical disciplines within the autoimmune disease field, the boundaries of our knowledge are expanded, which in turn enriches our research, teaching, and care of patients.

Accreditation Information

Activity Overview The Interdisciplinary Autoimmune Summit will occur on March 24–26, 2017 at the New York Marriott Marquis. A question-and-answer session with the faculty will follow each presentation.

To be eligible for documentation of credit, participants must complete the online evaluation form at www.naccme.com. All individuals who participate in the conference and submit the completed evaluation form online may immediately print their documentation of credit.

For questions regarding this educational activity, please call (609) 371-1137.

See the registration rates section of the website for fee information.

Please note the cutoff date for cancellation is January 13, 2017. All cancellations must be received in writing and postmarked by that date. Full registration [less a $100 processing fee or full registration amount, whichever is less] will be refunded only to cancellations received in writing before the above date. No refunds will be issued after January 13, 2017 without exception. Registrations are transferable at any time.

Learning Objectives

After attending the Interdisciplinary Autoimmune Summit, participants should be able to:

› Describe the relationship between the pathophysiology of immune-mediated chronic inflammatory diseases and the mechanism of action of new and existing treatments.

› Outline the roles of current and emerging immunosuppressive, anti-inflammatory, and disease-modifying treatments for immune-mediated chronic inflammatory diseases in treatment paradigms.

› Develop collaborative care guidance that improves the management of patients with multiple manifestations of immune-mediated disease.

Intended Learners This activity is designed for dermatologists, rheumatologists, gastroenterologists, immunologists, nurse practitioners, nurses, physician assistants, and other healthcare professionals involved in the management of patients with autoimmune diseases.

Accreditation

In support of improving patient care, North American Center for Continuing Medical Education (NACCME) is jointly accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME), the Accreditation Council for Pharmacy Education (ACPE), and the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC) to provide continuing education for the healthcare team.
